Our soul is on a journey and at the level of our humanity, has probably been travelling for many lifetimes, with each incarnation having its own sacred purpose.

This life-time is no exception. We incarnate with a specific agenda, the intention of which is to bring us to a closer understanding of our True Self

This agenda is a mixture of lessons, intentions connections and things to accomplish for our highest good. We have also been endowed with certain gifts and talents which our soul wishes to use for the Greater Good of the collective.

We really are here to serve the Light

The journey of our soul throughout our many lifetimes is said to be stored in the sacred scrolls of the Akashic Records. What are the Akashic Records? Simply the accumulated memory of the soul. I love to work with beautiful images and I have chosen the one above because it contains several symbolic aspects. The elephant with its long term memory reminds us of all the information and experiences stored in the archives of our soul. The scrolls represent important messages that the soul needs in this lifetime to heal old wounds, patterns and behaviours that do not serve our greatest good. The winged figure is responding to the soul's experiences with gentleness and compassion, indicative of the non judgemental Higher Self, that force of Light, Wisdom and Love that resides within and can guide us on our journey. Want to join us? Then please read on.

Many people don't realise that at the human level, we carry our soul's history in the main 7 chakras or energy centres that reside within us.

When we work with each of these centres they can literally become Sacred Temples of Healing

On a practical level, the chakras contain specific vibrations that affect our security, emotions, self worth, relationships and our ability to connect with our Higher Self

We also carry invisible cords of attachment to our past that need to be released. These energy strands jam up the flow and make it difficult to let go of old patterns that restrict us.

In this workshop with Christine we will tune in to our Divine Inner Wisdom to locate the main areas in our chakra system where we might be holding old soul history that is ready to be released. Something perhaps we have struggled with for some time. We will then use the ancient shamanic practices including energy strand releasing to start the healing process.

A Sacred Sound Healing Ceremony with Ananda

Ananda works with people who are looking to strengthen their Soul or Divine connection and tap into their natural healing and creative talents. On this workshop she will be conducting a sacred sound healing session with many vibrational instruments including the Sun, Stardust and Heart Gongs which we haven't previously worked with. This will be a powerful experience.

Details for booking either or both workshops are shown below.
